Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow :
Most areas of the UK will have a dry and sunny day although Northern Ireland and northern and western parts of Scotland will probably become more cloudy with perhaps the odd light shower. Afternoon temperatures near or a little above normal after a chilly start. Tonight, England and Wales dry and mostly clear, Scotland and Northern Ireland cloudier with a few showers in the northwest.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
England and Wales continuing dry with sunny periods and becoming quite warm. Scotland and Northern Ireland cloudier at times with patchy rain in the northwest and temperatures nearer normal.
