++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It will be a windy day in the north, with showers or longer spells of rain across Scotland, these heaviest and most frequent in the northwest. Elsewhere it'll be mostly dry with sunny spells, though a few showers are possible in the west. Rain will then spread from the west overnight, reaching all but the far east by dawn.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Once the overnight rain clears, Sunday's looking mostly fine, though showers are likely for Scotland and the further rain should push into the southwest. The worst of the rain will clear overnight leaving a mostly fine but often rather cloudy Monday.
