Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
After a dry and bright start to the day, before a squally band of rain then quickly spreads eastwards across the bulk of England and Wales. Meanwhile, brighter skies with blustery showers will be following on behind from the west. Becoming windy again, with locally severe gales likely in the north, especially western Scotland.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

There will be further spells of rain across northern and southernmost parts of the UK during Thursday and Friday. Elsewhere, drier with some sunny spells. However, it will be turning much colder by the weekend, with the showers turning increasingly wintry over northern hills.
