Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Patchy rain will clear northeastwards tomorrow, although it'll persist across eastern Scotland, turning heavy at times. Elsewhere, most places will have a bright start before further rain, locally heavy moves northeastwards with sunny spells and scattered showers following. It'll be windy, especially in eastern Scotland where severe gales are possible.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Persistent and heavy rain will continue to affect eastern Scotland on Monday and Tuesday, turning to snow on the hills at times. Elsewhere, there'll be some sunny spells and scattered showers in the southwest. It'll be turning colder by Tuesday, with temperatures near to the seasonal average.
