

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

A weak cold front is expected to move south during Sunday evening, with the cloud breaking to allow some clear spells overnight. This will lead to a risk of ice, although due to the variability of cloud cover and the formation of patchy fog, some places will escape the frost and ice.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 00:00 on Mon, 13th Feb 2012 until 09:00 on Mon, 13th Feb 2012

Ice will form on some untreated surfaces during the early hours of Monday across southeastern parts of England, particularly where roads and pavements have been left wet from rain or melting snow. The public should be aware that extra care will be needed, with patchy fog an additional hazard for road users.
