Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
There will be severe gales in northeast Scotland through Thursday, and a windy day elsewhere. It will be a cloudy start for much of the country, with a little rain and a few fog patches, It will become brighter from the north with blustery showers following, mainly in the north and west, turning wintry over the high ground.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

It will be bright and breezy on Saturday, and chilly, before clouding over in the north later. Winds will gradually ease through the day and overnight. Sunday will be cloudy and mainly dry, but a little rain is likely in the northwest.
