

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Tuesday 04 Oct 2016

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Any mist or fog this morning will clear to leave a fine and dry day. There will be some cloud around, and despite the breeze it should feel quite warm in any sunny spells. Overnight it will stay dry and most places will have a milder night than last night.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
The weather will stay mostly fine and dry through Wednesday and Thursday, with patchy cloud and sunny spells. It may feel rather chilly though, especially on Wednesday when it'll be quite windy. There is a small risk of the odd shower on Thursday, but most places will stay dry.

(C) Crown Copyright 2016. Published by the Met Office.