

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

A frontal zone will extend southwards across much of northern Britain during Friday afternoon and evening, bringing with it increasingly heavy and persistent rain as a very strong, moist west to southwesterly flow develops. By midnight, rainfall totals of 40-60 mm will have built up in places, although more like 20 to 30 mm over southern Scotland. This is the start of a lengthy spell of very wet weather over the weekend, for which additional warnings have been issued.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 14:00 on Fri, 04th Dec 2015 until 23:55 on Fri, 04th Dec 2015

Rain will turn heavier and more persistent across central and western Scotland and parts of northern England on Friday afternoon and evening. The heavier rain will reach the West Highlands this afternoon then extend southwards this evening. The rain will be accompanied by severe gale force southwesterly winds, for which a separate warning has been issued. Please be aware of the risk of localised flooding, difficult driving conditions and some low level transport disruption.
