Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow :
Many northern and eastern areas will remain cloudy throughout today and tonight. There will be patchy rain in central and southeastern areas at first today, with further light rain at times in other northern and eastern areas. Although largely cloudy in the west, there are likely to be a few clear or sunny spells here, mainly across southwest Scotland, southwest England and south Wales. Temperatures near normal.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
Little change is expected through Friday and Saturday, still some rain or drizzle at times in the east, the best of any sunshine in the sheltered parts of the west. Temperatures similar.
