++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
A band of rain will slowly move northwards towards Scotland through the day on Thursday, giving some heavier bursts at times. As the rain clears central and northern England and Wales, brighter spells will develop along with a scattering of showers, some of which may turn heavy at times. It will be breezy too, especially in the south.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
It will be unsettled through Friday and Saturday with further spells of rain but also some drier intervals. It will become slightly warmer day-by-day, particularly in the southeast where it will feel rather humid, but it will turn somewhat breezier.
