

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 07 Apr 2011

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Most areas dry with bright or sunny spells. Rather more cloud at times across Wales and central England with a few spots of rain. Sunny and warm further south. A few light showers in northwest Scotland. Overnight, long clear spells across much of the country. Some mist and local fog patches will form. A few showers in northwest Scotland.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Dry across most parts with a good deal of sunshine. Feeling pleasantly warm generally. Cloudier in northern Scotland with a few light showers. Most southern and eastern areas dry and sunny on Saturday, but some showers spreading to the west.

(C) Crown Copyright 2011. Published by the Met Office.