Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow :
Bright or sunny spells and showers are expected for many, the showers heavy at times, most frequent in the northwest, more isolated further south and east with many southwestern parts staying dry. Brisk breeze across the north and generally feeling fresher, although pleasant in sheltered, sunnier areas.

Tonight, further showers continuing in the northwest but, for most, becoming dry with clear spells. Staying windy at times in the north.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Little change for the far north. Elsewhere, a bright start for many on Thursday but cloud and rain extending across many central and southern areas, clearing to sunny spells on Friday.
