Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Mist and fog patches in the morning will slowly clear to leave a largely fine day with some sunshine for most. However, there is the chance of the odd shower, especially in the north and west, and these may turn quite heavy in places. A spell of rain is expected for parts of southeast England during the evening.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
A fine day for most on Sunday, once mist and fog patches clear through the morning. However, overcast skies and patchy drizzle will spread from the southeast later, continuing northwards on Monday, with only northern Scotland holding on to the brighter weather.
