

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 02 Jan 2014

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It will be largely dry and bright with a few showers around, these mainly near western and southern coasts. Rain will spread into the southwest by the evening, then continue northeastwards through the night bringing very strong winds. The worst of the rain should clear during the early hours of Friday but further blustery showers are expected.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Friday will see widespread gales, these severe in many coastal areas. Further blustery and heavy showers are expected, although some good clear breaks are likely in the southeast later. The showers will ease and the winds should become less strong through Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2014. Published by the Met Office.