Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Thundery showers, initially across the southwest, will become more numerous through the day, with the potential for a few severe thunderstorms developing in the south by the afternoon. More general heavy rain will move into the southwest later. Further, it will be cloudier than on Thursday, with a few showers possible.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

A much cooler and fresher day than on Saturday, with a band of heavy rain slow-moving across central areas. Scotland will also see some showers, but elsewhere it should be mainly dry. Rain will gradually ease away on Sunday, although with temperatures a little cooler than average.
