++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Largely cloudy with some outbreaks of light rain or drizzle around both today and tonight, these will be most frequent over northeastern England, parts of the Midlands and eastern Wales. Much of Scotland and some western parts will be dry with sunny then clear spells, and some fog and frost is likely across parts of Scotland overnight. Generally light winds.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
Mostly cloudy with some outbreaks of light rain and drizzle, again driest and brightest in the north and west. Mostly light winds. However, breezy conditions with showers and spells of rain will push east across all parts later on Thursday.
