Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Tuesday will be mostly dry and cloudy with occasional bright or sunny spells, and with the best of any sunshine in the east. A few showers are likely at times in the west, and some more persistent and heavy rain will develop over western Scotland late in the day.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:
Coastal gales are expected on Wednesday, with outbreaks of heavy rain travelling eastwards across all parts later in the day. The rain and gales will clear during Thursday, but it will remain windy and become much colder with scattered sleet and snow showers spreading into northern areas in the afternoon.
