Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

A dull, damp start for many areas tomorrow, rain on and off through the morning, mostly light but with some rather heavier outbreaks within it. In the afternoon, western parts of the UK becoming mostly dry and somewhat brighter, but central and eastern parts seeing a few sharp showers developing. Far northern Scotland may stay dry throughout.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Continuing very unsettled with showers or longer spells of rain in most areas, often heavy and perhaps thundery. Southwest England, northeast England and southeast Scotland most at risk from prolonged heavy rain. Light winds for many, with temperatures around average for early July.
