Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Outbreaks of rain are expected to return to southeastern areas of England during the day but most other parts of the country will be dry with some sunny spells, especially across the north and west. North to northwest winds will be mainly light and it will feel a little cooler than recently.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
It will stay largely dry and fine across the bulk of the UK on Sunday but cloud and patchy light rain in southeastern parts of England will gradually spread as far as southern Wales and the Midlands by Monday. Some frost and fog is possible during the nights.
