Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Low pressure remains in charge across the UK tomorrow bringing further heavy rain or showers to most parts. The most persistent rain is likely across northern parts where it will feel cold here for the time of year. Windy for all with further gales affecting many northern areas.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

It will be another unsettled day on Wednesday for most, with showers or longer spells of rain. The heaviest of the rain is likely across the south, with the risk of some thunder at times. Conditions will then slowly become drier and somewhat brighter from the west during Thursday.
