++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Today will be another largely dry day with variable amounts of cloud. The best of the sunshine will be in the south and east with thicker cloud and some light rain towards northwest Scotland. Clear spells overnight in the south and east will allow for some patchy frost and fog, but it should be cloudier elsewhere.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Next week things are going to stay largely benign with further variable amounts of cloud allowing for some sunny spells. A little light rain is possible but it should stay mostly dry. It will be cold towards the southwest, but near normal further north.
